Pixley and the Chronicle.

It is hardly probable that this community, with the dark shadow of murder and assassination that now surrounds it, will be prepared to receive anything but a serious, earnest, and sorrowful consideration of the recent appalling events. Of that occasion let us speak.

The Chronicle [editorial] of Monday last, which is understood to have been prepared by Mr. Pixley himself, and which is the only expression of opinion that has been made by the Chronicle [editor] since the murder, is a most remarkable production. It is a labored attempt to show that Mr. Pixley was not responsible for the murder, and that the responsibility for it rests upon the community at large, which, according to the Chronicle, has been for years denouncing Mr. Pixley and his paper, and thereby inciting to violence. The Chronicle [editorial] says:

"Mr. Pixley has been the object of the most unrelenting persecution for years. Every act of his life has been misrepresented, every motive impugned, every word distorted, every sentiment misconstrued, and every effort to do good has been met with the most malignant opposition. Mr. Pixley has been denounced as a murderer, as a duelist, as a coward, as a bully, as a libeler, as a blackmailer, as a thief, as a liar, as a defaulter, as a forger, as a perjurer, as a drunkard, as a gambler, as a debauchee, as a libertine, as a pimp, as a panderer, as a thief, as a robber, as a pirate, as a cutthroat, as a scoundrel, as a villain, as a devil, as a fiend, as a hell-hound, as a monster, as a wretch, as a reptile, as a dog, as a hog, as a jackass, as a liar

CITY AND COUNTY PRIMARIES.

TO THE COUNTY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

On next Monday there will assemble in this city a convention that should have some standing significance. This is a time when a review of official life in Alameda county, which will be found on other pages of this paper, will give all voters material for independent, comprehensive judgment. It is the most searching test to which the office-seeking spirit can be subjected. It is time for thorough reform and overhauling of local politics. The people of Alameda county are unanimous in their desire for economy in administration. The present extravagance of county government is a reproach. It is time for a change. The delegates to the local convention are not responsible for the past, but they are responsible for the future. They can make a record which will reflect credit upon the party, or they can assist through the usual common-place routine of the times, plotting with the ring, and so join and help to prolong it. We would like to see every delegate to the convention on this ticket standing by these timid people and telling them that the party will be ruined if they do not assert themselves. The opportunity is a splendid one for the honest men of the party to show that they value the party as well as the people. Let the Democrats have the county if they can get it honestly. The opportunity is a splendid one for the honest men of the party to show that they value the party as well as the people. Let the Democrats have the county if they can get it honestly.
